TEAM GOBLIN

I am team Goblin I am going to be making an interactive audiobook for The Princess and the Goblin by George MacDonald. The tale follows a princess and a cast of goblins who hate poetry. I recorded this audiobook with my brother who was my “voice actor”.

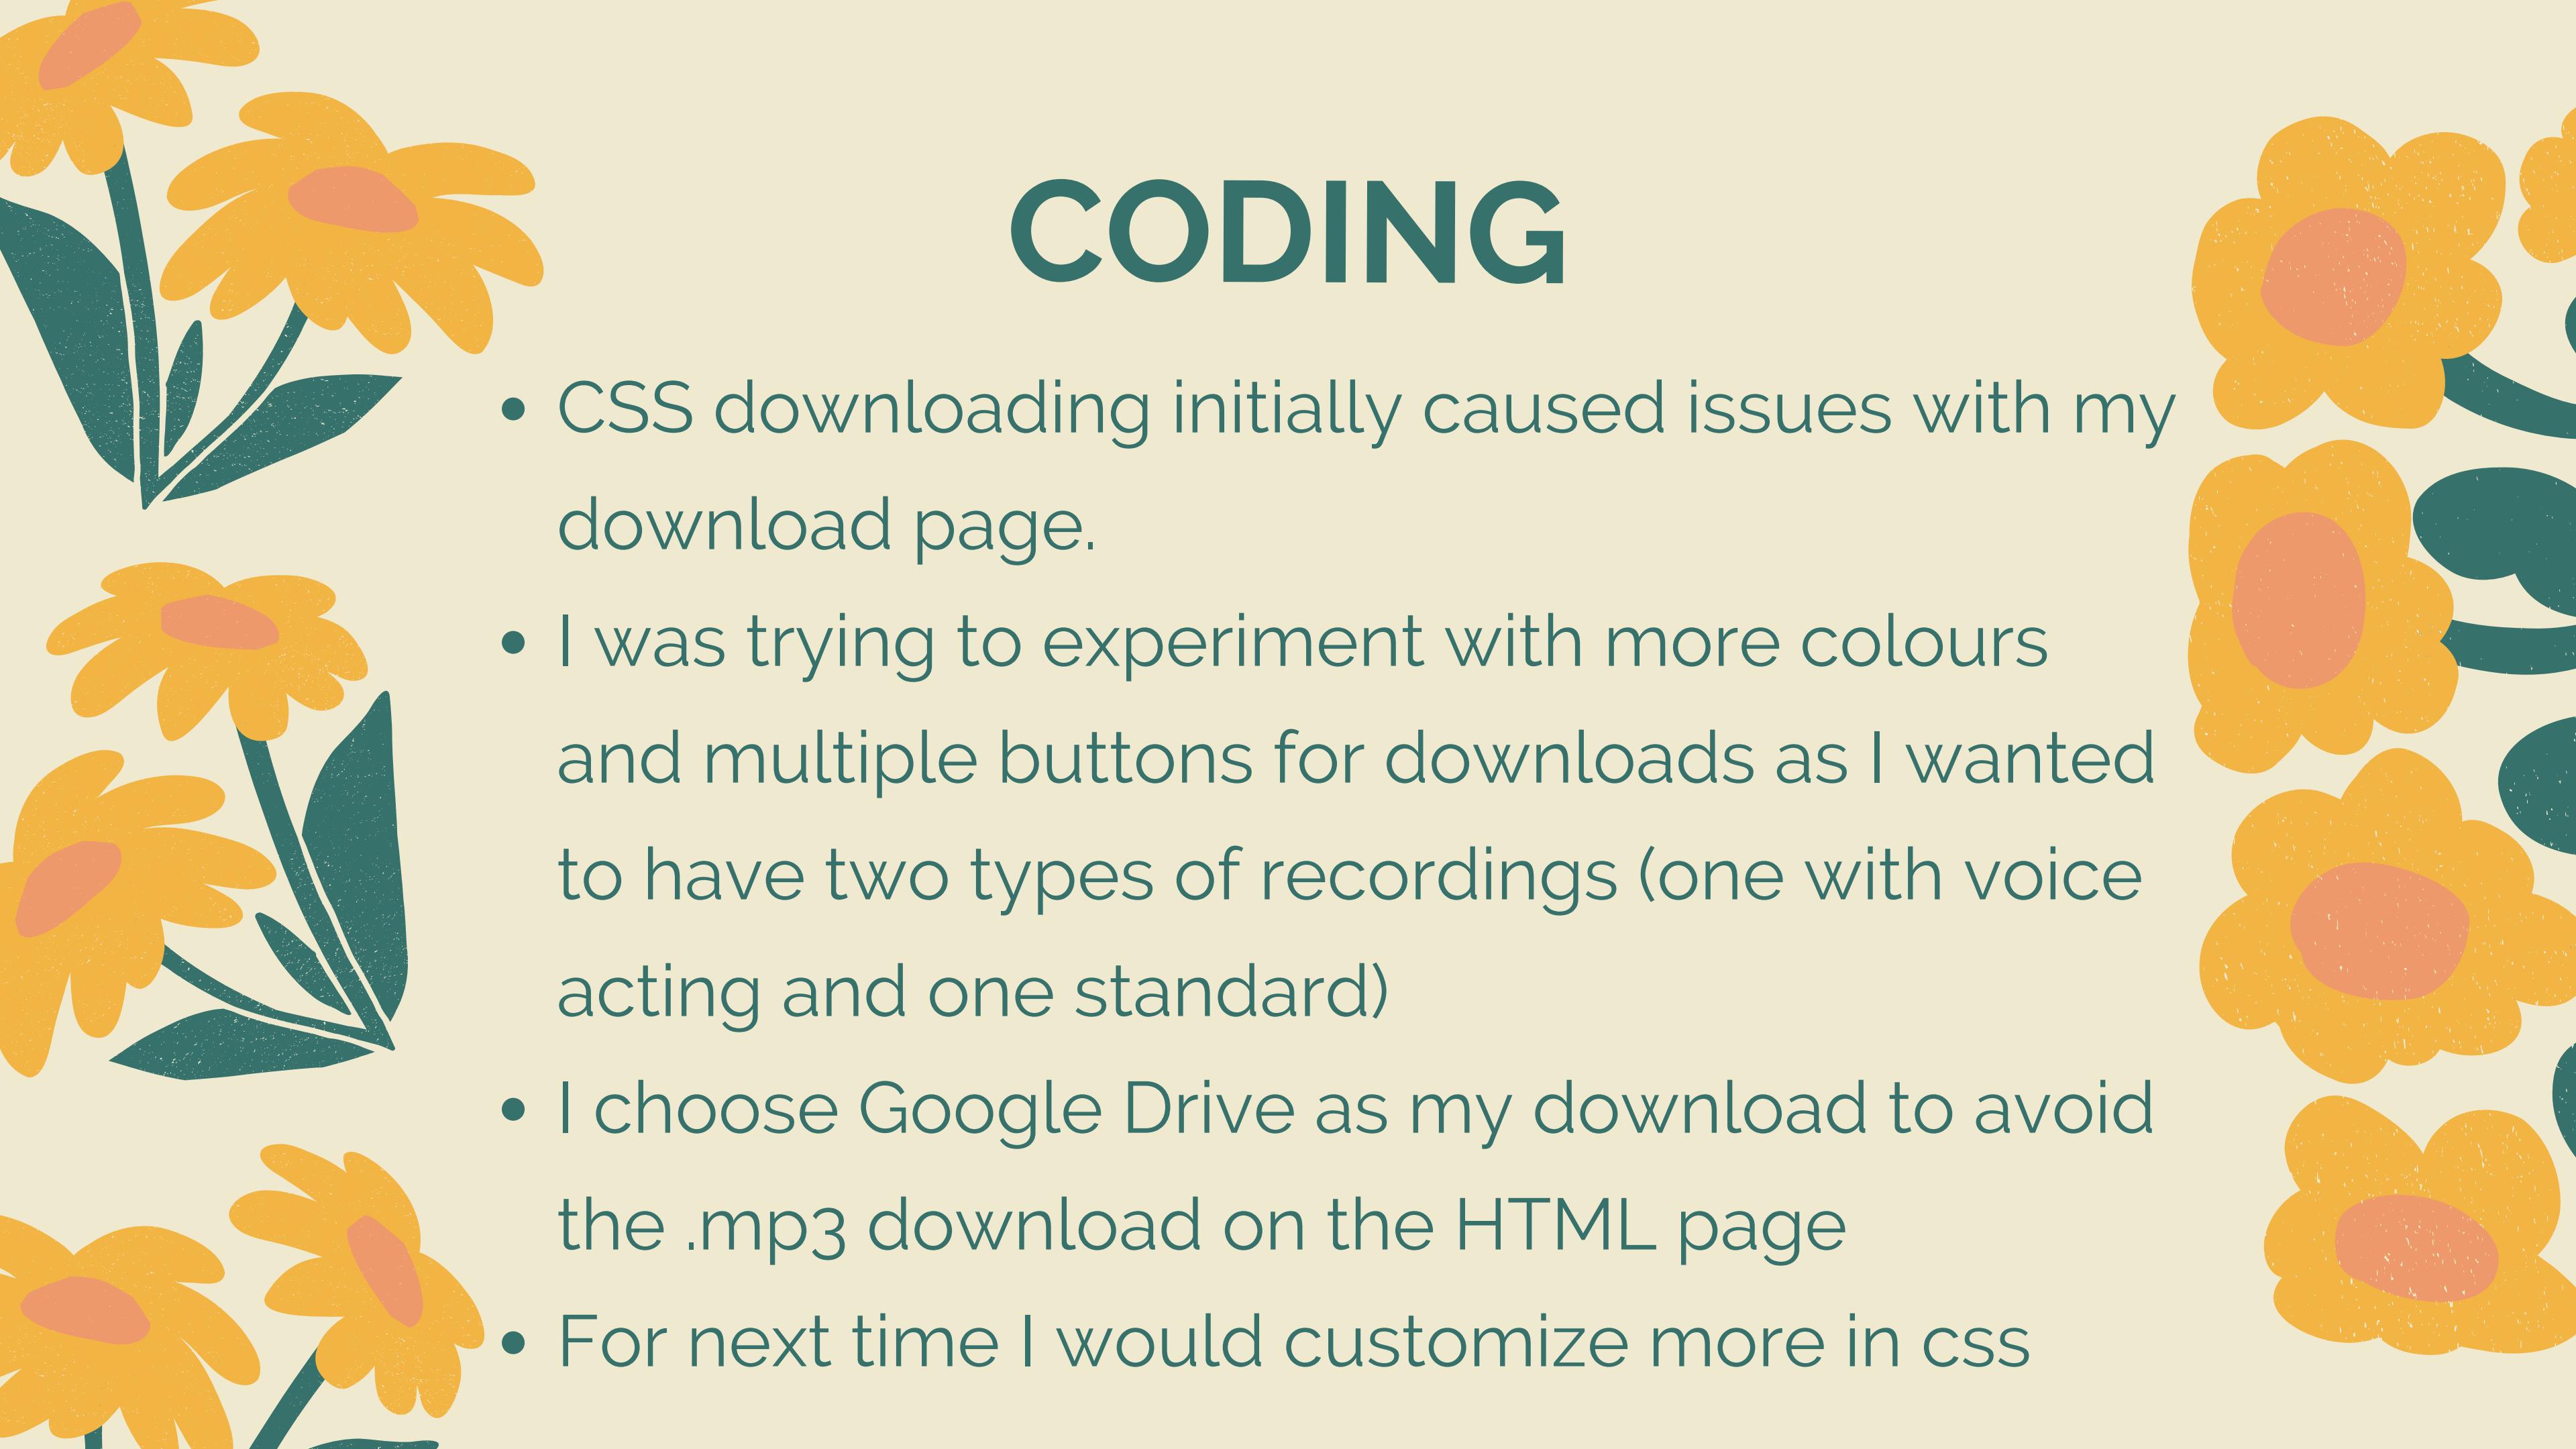

How it started

AUDIO

- Formatting script in a Google Doc
- Recorded voiceover
- Found sound effects
- Editing in Audacity

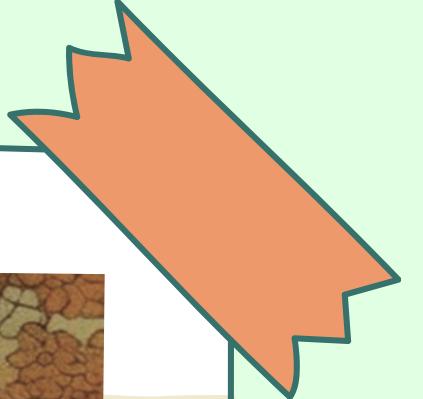

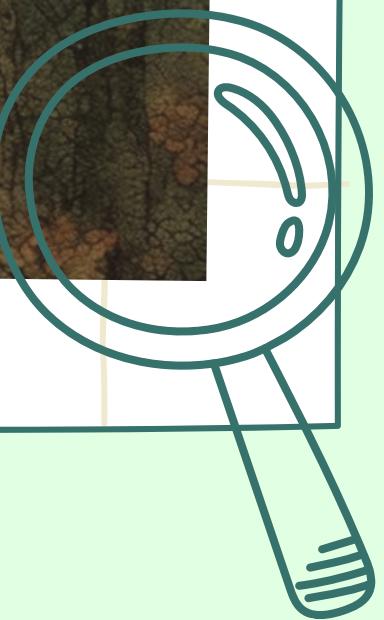

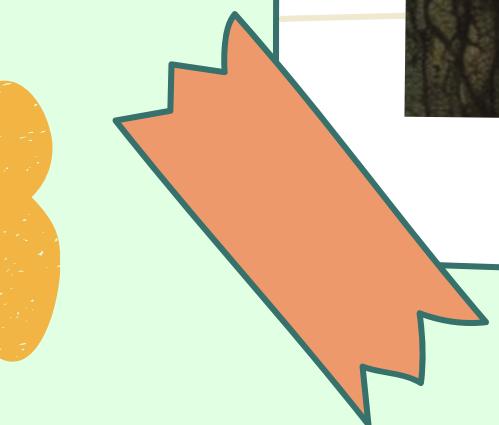

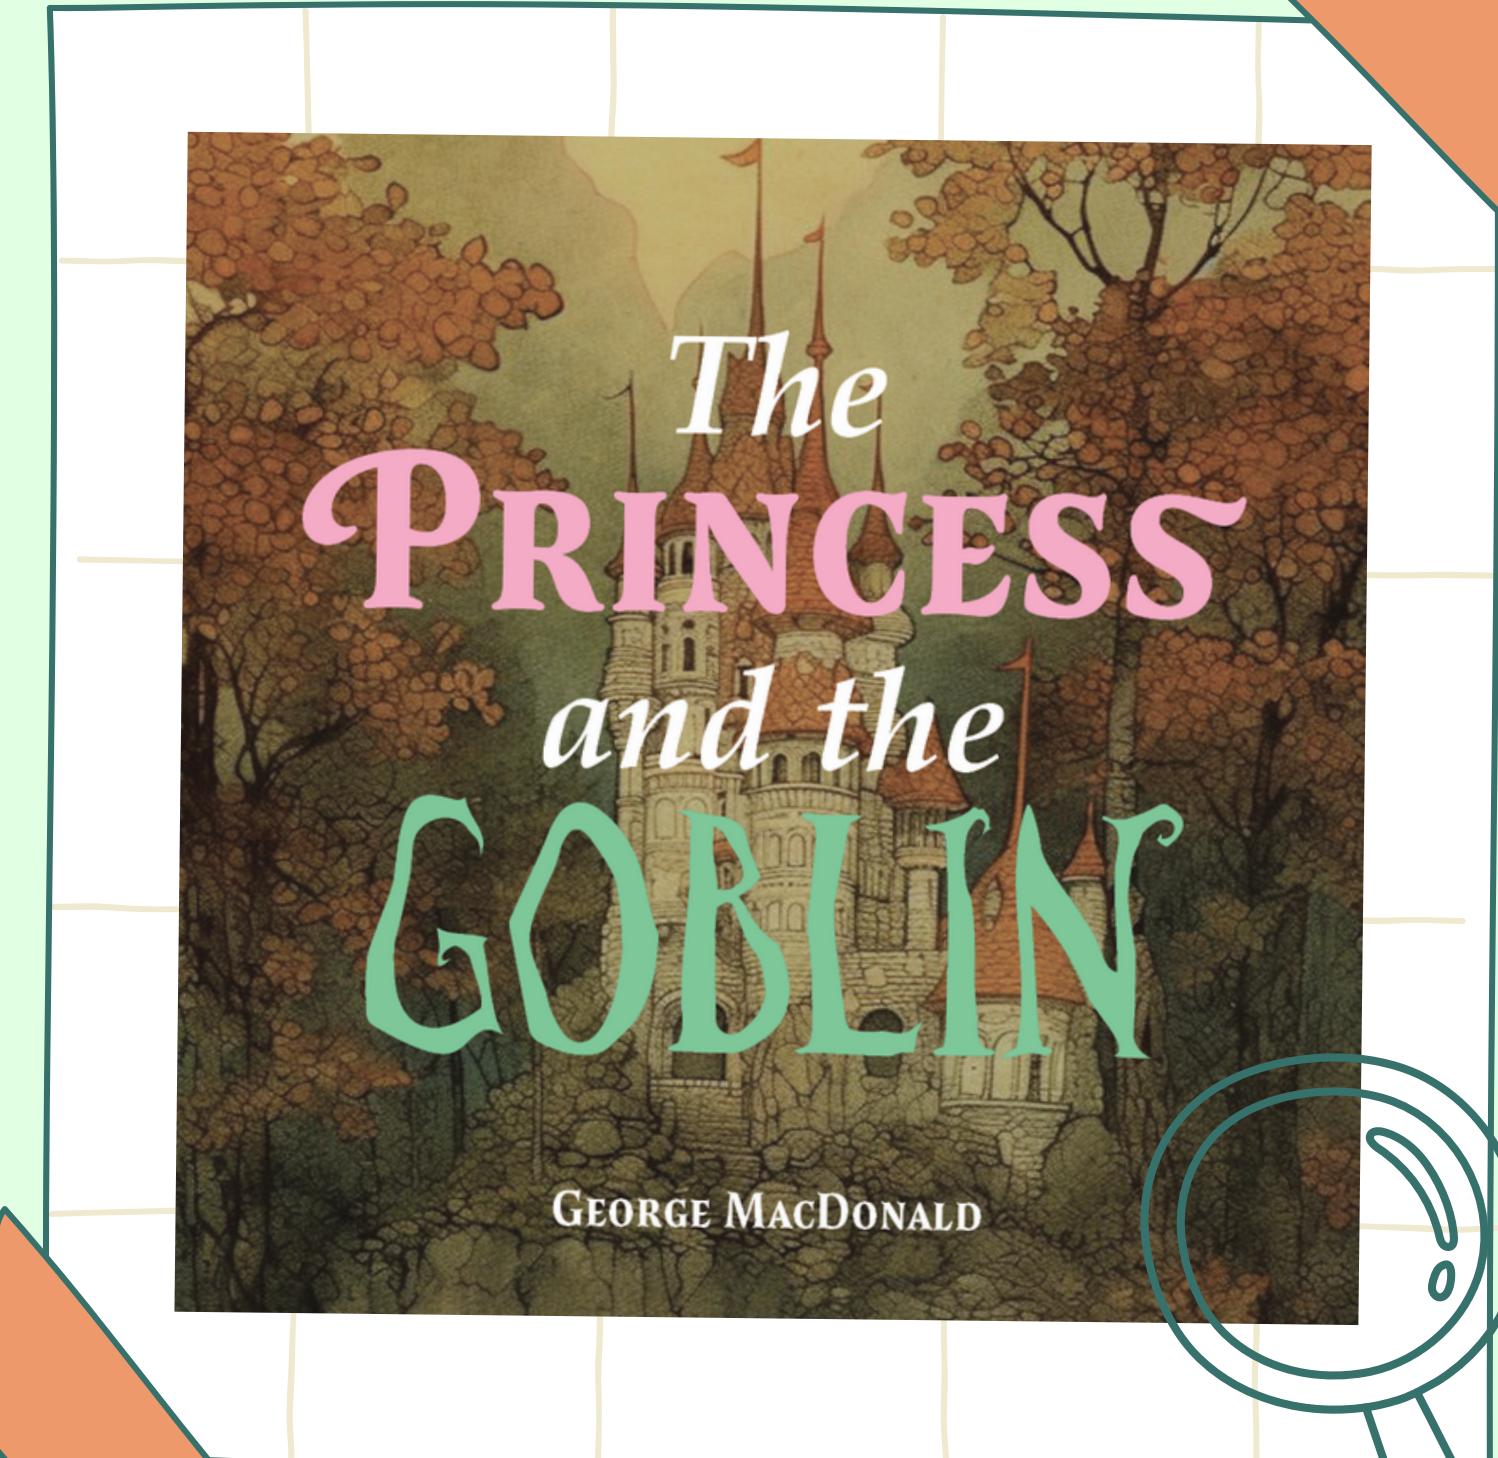

EXTRAS

- Pinterest board for cover design
- Spotify playlist (if I were to add music)
- Documentation
- Special font

CODING

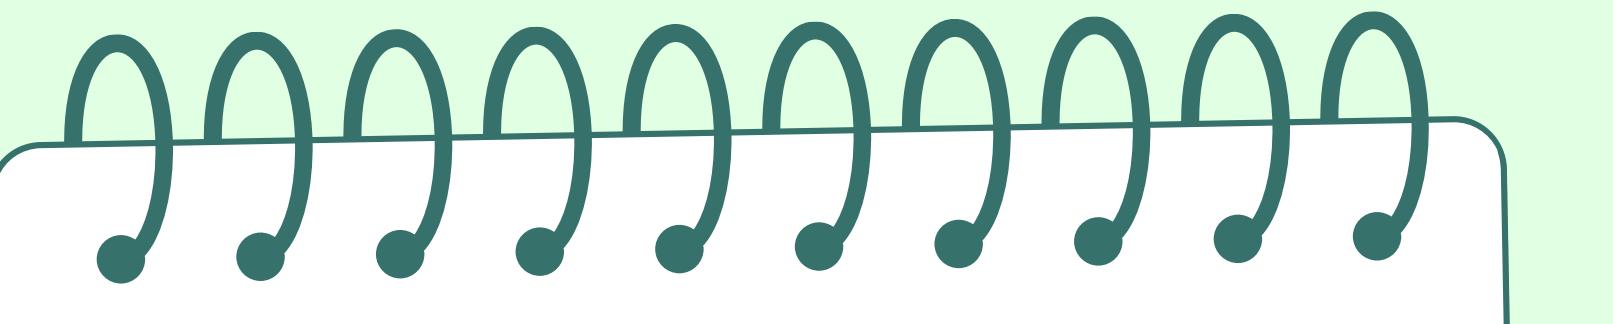

- CSS downloading initially caused issues with my download page.
- I was trying to experiment with more colours and multiple buttons for downloads as I wanted to have two types of recordings (one with voice acting and one standard)
- I choose Google Drive as my download to avoid the .mp3 download on the HTML page
- For next time I would customize more in css

TROUBLES

- I didn't get around to adding music at the beginning of the recording. This is something I would add if I had more time.
- I recorded my audio in two locations (you can tell when you hear it) One being my basement and the other being my closet.
- I would have rerecorded certain parts relating to the "voice acting" parts.

FINAL THOUGHTS

- I had a fun time recording
- I know now the effects that your “studio” has on sound.
- I would use a pop cover on my mic next time.
- Watch your download pages and numbers in CSS and HTML.
